

Are you or someone you know living with dementia?

Are you over 18?

Are you living with dementia or do you know a family member or friend who has dementia?

Would you be interested in helping shape a research project for people with dementia and their carers?

What is the research project?

The study aims to develop digital technologies to help carers and people with Dementia when they are receiving end of life care.

We are looking for people to join a patient and public involvement and engagement (PPIE) group to help shape the project.

What would I be doing?

- Take part in discussions, sharing your insights to help guide the development and management of the project so that it is relevant, manageable and understandable for future participants.
